

WAR OPPOSED TO ABOLISH DEATH CROSSINGS

Cheney Heads Movement in Legislature—Plans to Have Towns and Counties Pay Part.

An aggressive movement to abolish railroad grade crossings in Georgia has been inaugurated in the present Legislature.

It will be backed vigorously by a number of the strong men of the House, headed by Representative John P. Cheney, of Cobb, a legislator of long and large experience.

Mr. Cheney said to be slated for the chairmanship of the Western Atlantic Railroad Committee. In person he has been active in the House on matters pertaining to railroads.

It is realized that the matter of putting in underpasses and overpasses will prove to be very costly.

Representative Cheney thinks it is the saving of human lives, but in the matter of the overpasses, he is not so sure.

Neither the House nor the Senate is expected to do anything more than mark time for now.

Mr. Cheney's final communication to the bill in, and every executive appointment requiring the consent of the Senate has been deferred.

To-day the retiring Committee is busy winding up various details of the administration.

Wide Range of Bills Introduced in Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the Senate Friday morning:

Effective Anti-Shipping Bill Probably Only Legislation They Will Urge This Session.

A fight for the further extension of prohibition in Georgia will be made in the present Legislature, and it will center around a bill proposed by Senator Dixon, of the Thirty-seventh District, in the Senate, and Representative Pugh, of Burke, and Evans, of Screven, in the House.

This bill will seek to extend the State laws to territorial limits into the Webb law. It is understood that the Georgia Anti-Saloon League will pin its entire hope to this law to the exclusion of all other proposed legislation.

Senator J. T. Dixon, author of the proposed bill, said in a speech Thursday, declared that in his opinion the reports of an alleged liquor lobby formed to fight the bill have been exaggerated to a certain extent.

"I have no definite knowledge," he said, "that such a lobby exists, and I doubt very much if the lobby is doing anything to influence the bill to our ears that the liquor men have established headquarters at hotel."

"I don't expect fight," he said, "but I will work against the bill I introduced yesterday. The bill is made of less a matter of form, and is designed merely to put into force the law."

"Of course, if it should develop later that the bill is a mere form, and is designed merely to put into force the law, I will not object to its passage."

Georgia prohibitionists are said to be in a state of excitement over the proposed bill. They believe the State now has the restrictive prohibition law on its feet.

Three Bills Offered in Senate and One in Lower House in Legislature.

A fight to abolish child labor in Georgia was inaugurated in the Assembly Friday morning. Three bills, designed to remedy present conditions, were introduced in the upper branch by President of the Senate Randolph Anderson and Senator Fred Kea.

In the House, a measure aimed at reform child labor was introduced by Representative W. H. C. To provide that notice by the carrier shall be given to the consignee before undelivered goods may be sold.

Senator Anderson's bill goes into detail regarding the age at which a child can work in a factory. It contains the following provisions:

After 1913 no child under 15 years of age shall be employed in a factory or other industrial institution.

After 1915 no child under 14 years of age shall be employed in a factory or other industrial institution.

Senator Anderson's bill provides that the age of a child shall be the age of 14, which provides that the child shall be employed, unless the child can read and write.

The bill makes a violation of the provisions of the bill a misdemeanor.

Senator Kea's bill directed more at reforming factory conditions and taking care of women workers.

MRS. A. HARRINGTON WILSON.

Mrs. A. Harrington Wilson Would Carry Plea for Bluejacket's Discharge to Daniels.

Mrs. A. Harrington Wilson, who was Miss Colleen Curry, a wealthy heiress of Key West, Fla., who recently married A. Harrington Wilson, a graduate of the United States Navy with sixteen months to serve, will appeal to Uncle Sam through her cousin, ex-Senator Harris, of Florida, to grant an honorable discharge to her husband after two months' further service.

If this appeal is unavailing, Mrs. Wilson declared Friday, that she would go to person before Secretary of the Navy Daniels, with whom she is acquainted, and there, submitting all the power of her Southern grace and charm, would plead her case directly to him.

But she does not believe this course will be necessary. She is confident that the justice of her petition will be recognized by the Government and there, where she obtained her discharge on the appeal made through ex-Senator Harris.

Young Wilson's career in the navy was all very interesting and successful. He entered the navy in 1908, and after a year's service, he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant.

Wilson met Miss Curry in the Dry Tortugas and there, where the tropical breeze blew the year around, he and the happy day had been set for Friday, June 13, the mother back at her home in Key West learned of what was going on and sent a hurried wireless message for her daughter to come to Key West.

She went, but it was with little joy in her heart that she realized that with her sweethearts miles and miles separated from her.

She came to Atlanta to visit her former schoolmate, Mrs. Roscoe Walker, of 111 Cheshire Avenue. She wrote to Wilson, telling him that the disposal of her heart was her own affair and for him to come right on to Atlanta.

She was married by the Rev. John Wing in the West End Episcopal Church Friday, the 13th. Three days later, Wilson returned to the Dry Tortugas.

LANFORD AND FELDER ARE HELD FOR LABEL

Grand Jury Indicts Lawyer and Head of Detectives for Attacks on Each Other.

Three indictments charging criminal libel were returned Friday by the Grand Jury against Colonel Thomas B. Felder, the Atlanta attorney, and Newport Lanford, chief of detectives, who accused each other of most everything in the category after the famous dictograph episode. There are bills against Felder and one at Lanford.

The two men will be placed under bond and will be tried in the Fulton County courts under the misdemeanor act for unlawfully and maliciously accusing each other, according to the true bills.

The penalty for conviction of a misdemeanor is six months in the county jail, twelve months in the penitentiary, a fine not exceeding $1,000, either or all three.

Colonel Felder appeared at the Recorder's office about 2 o'clock and furnished the $500 bond required. Chief Lanford had not been located at that time, but was expected to do likewise. The accusation against both men is based on communications issued against each other and published in the Sunday newspapers of May 26 and June 2.

In those statements Colonel Felder attacked Lanford bitterly, hurling a line of invective that actually has been made by Lanford and Lanford in a "contemptible libel" and "contemptible libel." He denied absolutely any wrong-doing.

To establish the fact that the statements published here actually were made by Lanford and Lanford, the Grand Jury summoned Sidney Ormond, chief editor of The Commercial Appeal and the Atlanta Journal, both men testified that there could be no question that Lanford and Lanford issued the statements in question.

The new turn in the dictograph fight has entirely unexpected and promises striking developments. If the charges are upheld and the two men formally accused, the real fight will come at the trial, when it will be up to both Lanford and Felder to prove the charges they made against each other.

NEW FRANK DOBNEY SUSPENDED FOR VISIT TO DIVE

Solicitor Closely Guards Data of Which City Detectives Have No Knowledge.

New activity was injected into the Phagan case Friday when James Frank Dobney, negro sweeper at the National Pencil Factory, was removed secretly from his cell in police station and closely questioned by Frank Hooper, chief of detectives. The negro was taken from his cell by Detective Starnes, and behind locked doors questioned anew in the room used by the Police Commissioner. He had been in for only a few minutes before the action became known.

Mr. Hooper asked Conley various new questions, and after the questioning was over hurried away from the police station.

Dobney has new evidence. It is at the time that Hooper had questioned the negro. That a mass of evidence which the Atlanta detective force had no part in getting, and of which the members have had no knowledge, will be presented at the trial of Frank Hooper Friday.

Developments revealed that the Solicitor, through his personal investigation and that of his "greatest detective," has discovered a number of persons whose names have not been connected with the mystery in any way by the local detectives. From these sources for a number of days, the Atlanta detective force will be made public for the first time when Frank is just being tried.

Detective identified.

Mr. Dorsey for a time engaged the services of a well-known detective whose name he kept carefully a secret, but whose identity was disclosed Friday by the Recorder. Hooper's correspondent as Frank Pond, who was connected with the Pinkerton firm, is understood to have been in town in Houston, where he was seen by the reporter.

One of the witnesses who was shadowed by the Atlanta detectives all the ten days he was working on the case for the Solicitor, is said to have registered at eight different hotels under as many different names. At the Coroner's inquest he was identified by the Solicitor and no one present except Mr. Dorsey knew who he was.

Old Work Before Inquest.

Pond's most of his work before the inquest. Before coming to Atlanta he was in Asheville, N. C., on private case. In connection with the case, he was obliged to come to this city, and while here met Solicitor Dorsey. The Solicitor obtained the consent of Pond's employer to the plan of having the detective work for a number of days for ten days or two weeks.

Pond, by a process of elimination, reached the detective who was the only person who could have committed the crime, but this was before he had been discovered that Conley was in the factory and drunk at the time of the crime.

One of the witnesses who will be called by the Solicitor, of whose testimony the detectives evidently have been made, is Mrs. Fay Barrett. The Solicitor is believed to regard her statements as of great importance.

Daughter Says She Knows.

Mrs. Barrett is the woman who eventually was discovered that she had been in the factory and crying that someone had been telling lies.

Mrs. Barrett's daughter, Mrs. George Barrett, had told the officials that her mother knew more about the mystery than she had disclosed. This led to the questioning and the woman's hysteria. She was brought to the office Friday.

Mrs. "Bud" Fisher, wife of the creator of Mutt and Jeff, known on the stage as Pauline Weston, who was the victim of a unusual accident at the Piedmont Hotel, has recuperated adequately to undertake the trip to New York. Mrs. Fisher said Friday that she would leave Atlanta at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mrs. Fisher has regained most of her strength, and the long cash in her throat has practically healed. It will be necessary for her to undergo a three-month treatment to obviate all danger of a scar.

'Chemise Expose' Is Paris' Newest and Most Risque Dance

NEW YORK, June 27.—Take it from Miss Kelly Keene, a passenger who arrived here today on the Mauretania, that the "chemise expose" is a new dance which has just struck the big-time and it is ever getting popular.

The dance will be brought to New York and presented here unless the police interfere.

"I saw the dance in Paris," said Miss Keene, "and she danced all the night."

"The gown slashed," asked a reporter.

"Blashed!" exclaimed Miss Keene. "There isn't enough of it to slash. As for the dance, just add the tango to the bumpy hoo and the 'turdy' trol, then multiply that by three and add a dash of tango."

WAR OPENED TO BOOISH DEATH
CROSSINGS

Cheney Heads Movement in Legislature—Plans to Have Towns and Counties Pay Part.

An aggressive movement to abolish railroad grade crossings in Georgia has been inaugurated in the present Legislature.

It will be backed vigorously by a number of the strong men of the House headed by Representative John P. Cheney, of Cobb, a legislator of force and large experience.

Cheney's name was mentioned in a puzzling manner in the testimony of Miss Griffith at the Conner's inquest.

Miss Griffith was asked if she had seen Mr. Barrett on the fourth floor on the day of the crime and if, after in telling of the incident to A. P.
Barrett had some cases in her hand and was conferring with him.

What the purpose was in this line of investigation never has been explained.

The conversation with Mrs. Barrett must have occurred before Mrs. Phinney entered the factory, and what bearing the incident could have had on the investigation never has been explained.

The bill makes a violation of the law a misdemeanor.

Senator Keen's bills are directed more toward the factory conditions and taking care of women workers.

His other bill makes it incumbent upon factory owners to provide employees with first aid kits.

Will Urge This Session.

A fight for the further extension of prohibition in Georgia will be made in the present Legislature, and it will center around a bill proposed by Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh District.

This bill will seek to extend the State law to prohibit them into the Webb law. It is understood the Georgia Anti-Saloon League will pin its faith on this bill to the exclusion of all other proposed legislation.

The Federal statute prohibits without license the shipment of liquors into "dry" States. A bill has been introduced in the Senate which would amend the Federal statute so that it would apply to "dry" States which have adopted a restrictive prohibition law.

'The bill provides for the opening of a factory to give to the Department of Commerce and Labor information regarding labor conditions, hours of labor, earnings of the laborers, the character and amount of labor employed, and all other information that might be requested by the Department of Commerce and Labor. 'The other bill makes it incumbent upon factory owners to provide suitable seats for all women employees, and permit their use when the employees are not actively engaged in the work of the plant. 'The labor bill attracted considerable attention among the members of the Senate. Senator Anderson and Senator Kee are confident that they will pass the bill.

Judge Emory Speer Attacks Attorney General McReynolds' Espionage System

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name?"

"His examiner holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor."—Judge Emory Speer, in an address before the Iowa Bar Association.

Barriers Eaten on Trip Into Country Make Three Youngsters Ill.

The three children of Captain L. M. Poole, of the Atlanta police department, were reported Thursday morning as having recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning which they suffered while on a picnic.

Mrs. Poole said she had taken the children to the country Wednesday, and thought possibly they had been in the hot sun too much, or that the berries and sweet corn they had eaten for lunch had disagreed with them. A hurry call to police headquarters announced that they had been strangely poisoned.

The first signs that the children were suffering became evident at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Wallace, aged 11; Douglas, 8, and Elsie, 3 years old, were taken violently ill simultaneously after they had returned to their home at 855 Glenwood Avenue.

Chief Heavers hastened to the Poole home with a surgeon from the Grady Hospital. When they arrived, however, Captain Poole and Dr. Virgil Cook were there, and the children were soon relieved.

PAINTER FAMILY LOSES IN SUIT FOR ORGANS

BALTIMORE, June 26.—The edmurderer offered by the family of Edward G. Painter, the late Jacksonville fertilizer man, against the appointment of a receiver for his viscera, was overruled by Judge Duffy in Circuit Court today. The receivership proceedings, however, were continued until July 15, during which time the defendants may show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

When the case is reopened Judge Duffy will take testimony tending to show why a receiver should be named to take charge of the Painter organs. In the meantime they will remain here in the possession of Dr. Charles Glasser, chemist, to whom they were sent from Jacksonville for analysis.

In overruling the demurrer Judge Duffy said that the attorney for the Painter family had "shown that the organs had not shown to be within the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver for the organs. The court ruled, had the power to appoint a receiver, but he admitted it is questionable whether the court, after appointing a receiver, had the right to order the receiver to make scientific examinations of the organs as has been asked by the Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

CHANGING ABOLISHED BY BILL IN SENATE

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. J. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which declares the existing system of the State of Georgia to be obsolete, contains the following important provisions:

- To provide for the inspection of all county jails.
- To abolish the county chain-gang.
- To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.
- To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.
- To define the meaning and disposition of habitual criminals.
- To provide for a system of grades, classification and parole of convicts while in the penitentiary.
- To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, Senator Foster stated, embodies the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Wetmore, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts to retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chain-gang" in the caption of the bill, he confiding, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the changing system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chain-gangs and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth the policy of the State shall hereafter be to deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline and reform them, and to prevent their return to the commission of crime."

Board Members, Inspectors.

The sections of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for "quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by the

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN CASE

With the selection of the court room made Thursday, all is virtually in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of strangling Mary Phagan. The venire of Jurymen has been selected and July 8th fixed as the date, and both sides have announced they are ready to go into court.

A date has not yet been announced for the first floor of the old City Hall building. The decision was reached after a conference with Solicitor-General Dorsey, and it was represented that the able to hold the trial in the small and not well-ventilated court room in the Throver building.

The State is maintaining its determined attitude toward the subject. Frank A. Hooper, assisting in the prosecution, has branded them as a palpable trick to discredit the testimony of the State's witnesses.

The witnesses will be present with the advocate called for, but a hot fight will be put up by Solicitor Hooper and Attorney Hooper to prevent their use by the defense.

Old Star Witness
 The 27-year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial, according to all indications Thursday.

The State, if it is able to establish that Mouton Stover entered the theater on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most important victory. The evidence will still be substantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the witness who has sworn to Phagan's presence in the room at the time of the murder.

Her story, however, will be established or disproved in court, just as the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because there is the starting fact that every indication points to Mouton Stover having introduced the factory EMPLOYEES Mary Phagan.

Mouton Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Honor Edmondson, of 171 South Peachtree Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her mother's trunk. She arrived there at 11:15, and remained there until 11:30. She said that Frank was not in his office, and that she was unable to find him.

Frank, against the declaration of the State, that he was in the office at the time of the murder, has been shown to have been in the office of the factory that Frank had introduced the factory EMPLOYEES Mary Phagan, and that this in the hands of the State will be a most important fact in his office when she was in the building.

The Phagan girl left her home at 10:30, and was seen by her mother at 11:15. She said that she was in the office of the factory that Frank had introduced the factory EMPLOYEES Mary Phagan, and that this in the hands of the State will be a most important fact in his office when she was in the building.
