THAW FEARS KIDNAPING SCHEME

Instructs Lawyers to Have Special Guard—Expects To Be Back in United States This Week.

SHERBROOKE, QUE., Aug. 25.—"Harry K. Thaw will be back upon United States soil before the week is out."

This declaration was made here today by E. Blake Hooper, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration in Canada, who is in charge of the immigration activities in the Thaw case.

Lawyers on both sides agreed this week likely would see an end of Canadian participation in Thaw's fight against going back to Matinean.

Thaw told reporters he had instructed his eight lawyers to hire special guards for him while he is outside the jail and court house.

"It has come to my ears that the New York authorities will try to kidnap me if I am released on habeas corpus proceedings, as I fully expect to be," said Thaw. "I understand they will try to seize me by force and carry me into New York."

Thaw's kidnapping is planned. "Whether the attempt will be made in Sherbrooke or whether the kidnapers will wait until we are in United States soil is a question, but they would hardly affront the immigration authorities by asking to be admitted in the hands of Dominion Government representatives."

Thaw decided to fight his habeas corpus proceedings to a finish after his lawyers had put the question of dropping them up to their client.

New York State representatives are making elaborate precautions to combat any attempt by Thaw's friends to carry him off.

It is expected Thaw will be released Wednesday morning by Judge Glavin in the Superior Court. He will be arrested by the immigration authorities and taken to Coolbrook (the nearest port of entry to the point where Thaw entered Canada, where a court of inquiry will be held.

Thaw undoubtedly will be deported into the little Vermont village of Norton Mills, which immediately will become the scene of a big legal fight.

Thaw gives interview.

Dr. Broughton, With Black Eye, Explains He Got It at Tennis

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—"I wish to inform the congregation that I got it playing tennis—not the other way," said Dr. Len G. Broughton, of England, formerly of Atlanta, when he entered the pulpit of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church, wearing a beautiful black eye.

Little Miss Dixon in 'Richest Baby' Race

NEWPORT, Aug. 25.—The arrival of a daughter last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pitt Eugene Dixon has started society speculating as to who is the richest baby.

Alfred Wynne Vanderbilt, Jr., heir to about fifty millions, and William Henry Vanderbilt, the son of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, have been contenders for first honors, but now little Miss Dixon threatens to outclass them.

Mrs. Dixon is a granddaughter of P. B. Widener, the traction magnate; so Baby Dixon has many millions in prospect.

Policeman Shot as He Peers on Youth Calling on a Girl

P. E. Manser, 30 years old, of Oglethorpe Station, is held at police headquarters today on a charge of assault with intent to murder for shooting Patrolman C. P. Preston when the latter looked into a window of a house at No. 41 Kennedy street, where Manser was calling on Miss Lemmie Hollingsworth.

According to Preston, he and Patrolman Cochran had gone to No. 41 Kennedy street address to miss Claude Leatherwood, No. 41 Kennedy street, who told the officers that the conduct of a young man and a girl had offended his family. Preston went to a front window and placed his face against the glass. Cochran heard a shot and ran to the front of the house, where Preston told him he had been shot.

Manser was seen advancing to the front of the house with a revolver in his hand and was arrested. He denied the report of offensive conduct, and said he fired because he saw men looking into the window on numerous occasions.

PACKED COURTROOM APPLAUDS AS DORSEY BEGINS CLOSING PLEA

Refreshed by the week-end recess, Solicitor General Dorsey returned Monday to the State's closing argument. By the force of logic and denunciation of his final words to the jury, the Solicitor hopes to obtain a verdict of guilty against Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan.

The day and a half intermission furnished a breathing spell for the State's prosecutor. He came back to the battle with new spirit and with an absence of the fatigue that compelled him to stop his stirring argument Saturday and ask Judge Roan for a recess.

Knowing that it was the closing day of the Frank trial and that a fiery conclusion might be expected to the Solicitor's argument, hundreds were about the court room hoping that they might be among the fortunate to be granted admission to the small room.

Frank was at the court house some time before Dorsey resumed his address. His mother and wife came in an automobile shortly before court opened. The prisoner bore his usual unruffled and calm air. Interest probably was at its greatest height since the trial began.

MISTRIAL ASKED

$1,700,000 TO MOVE GEORGIA CROPS

Atlanta Gets $800,000 of United States Deposits--Asked for Larger Amount.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25--Georgia has been allotted $1,700,000 of the $5,000,000 which Secretary McAdoo will deposit in the banks of the South and west to assist in moving the crops.

Atlanta national banks will receive $800,000 deposits. The remaining $900,000 will be divided among Savannah banks and those of other cities, probably including Macon.

Five Atlanta banks are eligible to receive their deposits under the plan laid down by the secretary, that any bank so favored must have a circulation equal to 40 per cent of its capital stock.

It is expected that the money will be deposited within the next few days. It will be withdrawn in roughly equal quarters at a time over a period extending through February, 1914, so as not to create any disturbance of credits.

These funds are not loans in any sense of the word. They are deposits. The only difference between them and the deposits of any private concern is that the banks are required to give collateral of 10 per cent in Government bonds and 50 per cent in commercial paper of 90 days' maturity, or municipal of State bonds at 75 per cent valuation. The banks must pay 2 per cent interest.

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS VIGOROUSLY PROTEST AGAINST INTIMATIONS

Reuben R. Arnold at the conclusion of Solicitor Dorsey's argument at 12 o'clock, arose and made a motion for a mistrial.

Solicitor Dorsey finished his speech at twelve o'clock and Judge Roan prepared to charge the jury. A brief recess was taken.

With frequent clashes over intimated reflections on the motives of the counsel for the defense in introducing certain witnesses, the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of slaying Mary Phagan, drew to a close Monday as Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey continued his arraignment of the prisoner.

Mr. Dorsey was unsparring and vigorous as ever, although his voice showed traces of the terrific ordeal which he put it in his sensational speech Saturday.

It was problematical whether recess would be taken before Judge Roan's charge to the jury, but all the indications were that Frank's fate would be in the hands of the "twelve good men and true" before mid-afternoon.

The Solicitor made capital out of the prisoner's persistent refusal to face Jim Conley when he was in the Tower. He declared that it was the first time in history that a man with Anglo Saxon blood Mr. Dorsey said Anglo-Saxon had failed to take an advantage to nail a statement by a negro which he protested was a lie. Declares Nervousness Proof of Guilt.

The claim was made again that Frank's nervousness the morning of his arrest and the morning he saw Mary Phagan's body at the morgue was an unflinching sign of his guilt. Mr. Dorsey declared that Frank's claim that it was due to the effect of the tragedy corresponded to that of Durant in the famous California murder on which the State dwelt at length Saturday. Durant said he had inhaled gas.

Derision was Mr. Dorsey's reply to Luther Rosser's statement that he did not seriously consider the evidence of the State's medical experts on the time Mary Phagan died as indicated by the condition of the cabbage she ate. Mr. Dorsey said this assertion was believed by the number of witnesses the defense had introduced in opposition.

Discussing these witnesses he gave it as his opinion that some of them were introduced in the hope that they might be family physicians of some of the jurors. Mr. Arnold was on his feet with an objection, declaring the remark an insult to the jury, but the Solicitor was upheld. There were other frequent clashes, the defense claiming Dorsey was making remarks not warranted by the records of the case, but the Solicitor was generally upheld. Asks Why Defense Didn't Prove Claim.

Mr. Dorsey also laid particular stress on Frank's claim that the haskoline which covered the alleged blood spots on the second floor would have been pink instead of white if the blood had been fresh. Mr. Dorsey asked why the defense had not brought in a reputable chemist to prove this assertion.

Mr. Dorsey insisted that as a matter of fact the blood spots were in the condition they were because the haskoline had been spread over them.

Bitter ridicule was cast on the attempt of the defense to show that Jim Conley had committed the crime and thrown the body through the scullerhole on the first floor. Mr. Dorsey continued to hurl his accusations directly at Frank.

The prisoner was so emotional on the surface as ever. Before court opened he chatted apparently cheerfully with his wife and mother. Mr. Dorsey received another ovation just before court opened Monday morning. A huge crowd gathered outside the courthouse door and cheered as the Solicitor entered. Even within the courtroom the applause burst out spontaneously, and Judge Roan, hearing as it died out under the rapping of the deputies, announced that he would clear the courtroom if it was repeated.

MYSTERY FATAL RAIL CRASH

One Dead, Scores in Peril in Unexplained Wreck on Georgia Road—Atlanta Hurt.

The exact cause of the wreck on the Georgia Railroad near Decatur early Sunday morning in which one negro was killed, two white women were seriously injured and a score or more passengers were shaken up, was still a mystery Monday.

According to reports at St. Joseph Hospital Monday morning, Mrs. George Matheson, of Peachtree Road, Atlanta, and Mrs. H. T. Cresce, of Charlotte, N. C., who were seriously injured, are resting well and will probably be released in a few days.

The wreck occurred just as the passenger train was pulling out of Alta Loma, where the regular stop had been made. The cars had scarcely gone a hundred yards when the freight engine swept around the curve just beyond the station and smashed into the rear end of the Pullman car.

The impact of the freight train, which heavily loaded cars, resulted in the demolition of the Pullman, the engine plunging itself in under the roof of the car.

Mrs. Matheson and Mrs. Cresce were the only ones found with serious injuries. A relief train brought the injured passengers to Atlanta, where they were rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Immigration Authorities to Have Special Guard—Expects to Be Back in United States This Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Thaw's flight against going back to Atlantic Canada, who is in charge of the immigration activities in the Thaw case. Lawyers on both sides agreed this week likely would see an end of Canadian participation in Thaw's fight against going back to Atlantic Canada.

Thaw told reporters he had instructed his eight lawyers to hire special guards for him while he is outside the jail and court house.

"I have come to my ears that the New York authorities will try to kidnap me if I am released on habeas corpus proceedings as I fully expect," Thaw said.

Whether the attempt will be made in Asheville or whether the kidnapers will wait until we are on United States soil is a question, but they would hardly affront the immigration authorities by seizing me if I am in the hands of Dominion Government representatives.

Thaw decided to fight his habeas corpus proceedings to a finish after his lawyers had put the question of dropping them up to their client.

MRS. FRANK ARRIVING AT THE COURTHOUSE

The wife of the defendant in the Phagan case has not missed a session of the trial of her husband.

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS VIGOROUSLY PROTEST AGAINST INTIMATIONS

At 12:45 Judge Roan finished his charge to the jury and the fate of Leo M. Frank, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, was put in the hands of the twelve men who have been listening to testimony for and against him for four weeks.

Judge Roan overruled the motion for a new trial.

Reuben R. Arnold at the conclusion of Solicitor Dorsey's argument at 12 o'clock, arose and made a motion for a mistrial. Attorney Arnold based his motion on the applause which at different times during the proceedings has broken the order of the courtroom.

"Your honor, at the beginning of this trial," said Arnold, "I am going to make a motion for a new trial and we are prepared to prove each of the instances upon which we base our request, unless your Honor is willing to admit that they are true."

"First, when the court refused to rule out the evidence of Frank's relations with other women as given by Jim Conley that there was applause in the courtroom."

"Second, on Friday, August 22, when the trial was on, and had just recessed for lunch, and when the jury was within 200 feet of the courthouse, and just as the Solicitor General was leaving the courthouse, the crowd gathered around and in plain hearing of the jury yelled: 'Hurrah for Dorsey.'"

"Third: That on Saturday, August 23, while the trial was still in process, and had just adjourned, that a large crowd gathered in front of the courthouse and as the Solicitor General left the courthouse, yelled: 'Hurrah for Dorsey.' The jury at this time was in a cafe at lunch within 100 feet and was in plain hearing of the noise, and that the crowd moved up in front of the cafe and again yelled: 'Hurrah for Dorsey,' all within plain hearing of the jury."

Fourth: On August 25, while the jury was in a room within 20 feet of the courtroom, that as the Solicitor General entered the courtroom, the crowd in the courtroom arose and applauded him, and that your Honor admonished the crowd that if it happened again he would clear the courtroom."

"And that all of this applause has tended to coerce and unduly influence the jury. The conduct was most disgraceful and the defendant has not been given a fair show at any time during the trial, from the start to the finish."

"I never saw a trial where there were so many manifestations of feeling. They have a natural tendency to intimidate and influence the jury."

"I make the motion for the new trial and I stand ready to prove what I have said."

"The jury was out while the arguments on the mistrial were being made. Dorsey arose with a strenuous objection."

"I take issue with the defense," almost shouted the Solicitor. "I never heard any such thing as Mr. Arnold speaks of. I think it would be the most ridiculous thing in the world to entertain the motion. I don't know whether all that Mr. Arnold has said is true or not, but I want your Honor to overrule the motion because it wouldn't amount to anything if it were true."

Arnold interrupted Dorsey. "Didn't you hear the cheering last Friday and Saturday? Didn't you hear them yell 'Hurrah for Dorsey.'"

Judge Roan admitted that he had heard cheering, but denied that the exclamation: "Hurrah for Dorsey," had reached his ears.

FRANK'S OWN STATEMENT IN FINAL PLEA

DEMANDS LEO FRANK BE SENT TO GALLOWS AS MARY PHAGAN'S SLAYER

Refreshed by the week-end recess, Solicitor General Dorsey returned Monday to the State's closing argument.

The day and a half intermission furnished a breathing spell for the State's prosecutor.

Solicitor Dorsey was vociferously cheered as he entered the courtroom by a crowd waiting for the trial to open.

After a brief recess, Dorsey resumed his argument, which he carried on for the remainder of the day.

He demanded that Leo Frank be sentenced to the gallows as the slayer of Mary Phagan.

Dorsey stated that the evidence was overwhelming and that the jury should find Frank guilty.

He argued that the State's case was strong and that the defendant's defense was weak.

Dorsey concluded his argument by demanding a verdict of guilty and the death penalty.

The jury was then called back to the courtroom to begin their deliberations.

The trial continued with the State presenting its case and the defense responding.

LEO FRANK ON HIS WAY FROM JAIL TO COURT

Frank is nattily attired, and walks briskly from the auto which brings him from the Tower to courtroom.

The accused never is handcuffed to the Sheriff, as are men considered by the law as desperate prisoners.

Leo Frank was escorted from the Tower of the State Capitol to the courtroom.

Frank was seen walking through a crowd of people as he was taken to the courtroom.

The trial proceeded with the State's closing argument and the jury's deliberations.

They were blood spots. You know that you didn't bring in a chemist because the result of spreading the gasoline over blood would have been exactly the result that was produced in the dressing room on the second floor.

Dorsey turned to the jury at this point and asked: "Do you know anything like this man's unappreciated work when his lawyers are unable to get any reputable chemist to come in and testify himself by declaring that those spots were not blood or that the result produced was not that of spreading gasoline over fresh blood?"

"This defense can not—they haven't got any defense. They circle and flutter, but never light. They grab a varnish, rat blood and Duffy's blood, but they never kneel down to show that it was not blood."

Dorsey then read the statement of Nell Starford, who swept that floor and who says it was not there Friday.

He then read the statement of Christopher Columbus Barrett, who describes what they say continues to draw his livelihood from the coffee of the National Paint Company.

Then they fly into another subject. It is the way they claim Jim Conley took that body into the basement.

But, gentlemen of the jury, you know and they know that that body wasn't taken down that scullie hole. It did not show there where the dust was thick.

Then they go back to the Clark Woodson's place, where the body would have been concealed better and longer than where the body was found.

Then they go back to the fact that the body was never sent to find it. They would have taken the time to tie a cord around her neck—a cord around her neck—a cord around her neck.

Then they go back to the fact that the body was never sent to find it. They would have taken the time to tie a cord around her neck.

Then they go back to the fact that the body was never sent to find it. They would have taken the time to tie a cord around her neck.

Then they go back to the fact that the body was never sent to find it. They would have taken the time to tie a cord around her neck.

never looked at the body of the girl again. And even if it had, it was but a glance as the electric light came on. I tried and tried and went into another room."

Arnold interposed another objection and said: "I object. It is in the record. It is in the record."

Dorsey: "I don't care anything about that. It is in the record. It is in the record."

Arnold: "I don't care anything about that. It is in the record. It is in the record."

Frank said that after looking at the body he identified it as that of the little girl who had been up on the second floor.

JUDGE REFUSES NEW TRIAL TO DEFENSE AS STATE CLOSES PLEA

The fate of Leo M. Frank, National Pencil Factory superintendent accused of the slaying of Mary Phagan, is in the hands of the jury.

After four weeks of the greatest legal battle in the history of the South the case was given Monday at 12:40 to the twelve men who have been silent, attentive listeners to the evidence for and against. The jury returned from dinner formally to begin its deliberations.

Atlanta and the State, and thousands in other States, awaited the verdict with a tensely not equalled in any other criminal case in Dixie's annals. Those who believed that Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, whose work has been the sensation of the trial, had won his fight saw a good omen in the move of the defense for a mistrial.

The motion for a new trial was made by Attorney Reuben Arnold on the grounds that the evidence of perjury contained in Jim Conley's statement had been illegally allowed to stand on the records and that the jury had been subjected to improper influences in the hearing of the crowd's cheering of Dorsey on the street near the courtroom.

Judge Roan denied the motion after Solicitor Dorsey in a brief but vigorous address branded the grounds as trifling.

The conclusion of the great trial attracted by far the greatest crowd since the opening and thousands failed to gain entrance to the scene of the legal combat. Special police, including a corps of mounted men, were at the scene trying to scatter the mass of humanity with but poor success.

Frank Hears Assaults Without Quiver. The silent prisoner in this most remarkable of tragic dramas seemed as much the stoic as on any day of the ordeal. He listened to Solicitor Dorsey's renewed assaults, made impassionately and unsparingly, without a trace of fear or quailing showing on his face. He heard Judge Roan tell the jury that if the evidence convinced it, he could be sentenced "to hang by the neck till dead," without a flicker of an eyelash.

He looked somewhat sallow on previous days, but his nerve was as remarkable as ever. With his wife, whose fortune has been as astonishing as his own except on one or two occasions, it was different. The approach of the end had apparently unnerved her. The woman who had steeled herself to hear her husband denounced as one of the greatest criminals in the history of the world, had heard him compared to the vilest in the Hall of Infamy, without a murmur of protest or a sign of remorse, broke down as the time came to put his life in the hands of "twelve good men and true."

All during Judge Roan's solemn charge she wept on her husband's shoulder. The strain of the tremendous ordeal had been too much for her and the tears flowed unrestrained. Frank's mother did her best to soothe her.

Prisoner Taken Back to Tower. When the case was delivered into the hands of the jury Frank was taken back to the Tower to the cell he has occupied since the closing days of April.

The jury before formally taking up its momentous task of arriving at a verdict went to lunch at the German Cafe on Pryor street. Court, however, formally reconvened at 1 o'clock for the consideration of what evidence should be allowed to go before the jury. Judge Roan heard arguments by the lawyers for both sides. The Solicitor finally decided to make over the plea of Solicitor Dorsey ruling that all of Jim Conley's affidavits should be put before the jurors.

The argument over the documentary evidence to be submitted to the jury was long and heated. The fight was particularly over the affidavits of E. M. Holloway made to Dorsey and that of Minola McKnight, cook in the Frank home, made to the police, and the statement, Frank made at the police station the day of his arrest. The Solicitor finally admitted that the affidavits of Holloway and Minola McKnight had not been submitted, but said he would look up the records to determine if Frank's statement had been submitted.

TO MOVE
GEORGIA

Atlanta Gets $800,000 of United States Deposits—Asked for Larger Amount.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Georgia has been allocated $1,700,000 of the $50,000,000 which Secretary McAdoo will deposit in the banks of the South and West to assist in moving the crops.

Atlanta national banks will receive $800,000 of the deposits. The remaining $900,000 will be divided among Savannah banks and those of other cities, probably including Macon.

Six Atlanta banks are eligible to receive these deposits under the rule laid down by the Secretary that any bank so favored must have a circulation equal to 40 per cent of its capital stock.

It is expected that the money will be deposited within the next few days. It will be withdrawn gradually, one-quarter at a time, over a period extending through February, 1914, so as not to create any disturbance of credit.

These funds are not loans in any sense of the word. They are deposits. The only difference between them and the deposits of any private concern is that the banks are required to give collateral of 10 per cent in Government bonds and 90 per cent in commercial paper at 65 per cent valuation, or municipal or State bonds at 75 per cent valuation. The banks must pay 2 per cent interest.

Banks Here Regret Amount Is Paid.

Disappointment is expressed by Atlanta bankers that Secretary McAdoo has seen fit to reduce the Atlanta appropriation from $1,000,000 to $800,000. The Clearing House Association had been advised of that fact, however, on Friday, three days before Monday's public announcement.

The committee necessary to pass on the local commercial paper offered as collateral for the deposits has been appointed and consists of C. E. Currier, president of the Atlanta National Bank, chairman; T. D. Meador, vice president of the Lewry National Bank; W. L. Peel, president of the American National Bank; Frank Hawkins, president of the Third National Bank, and Charles T. Ryan, cashier of the Fourth National Bank.

All six of the Atlanta national banks are eligible to receive less than 40 per cent of its capital stock. The remaining $900,000 of the outstanding bank notes to be repaid by the Government.

NO RECOMMENDATION TO COURT FOR MERCY
CONTAINED IN VERDICT; THE BALLOT TAKEN

Leo M. Frank, convicted of the slaying of Mary Phagan, when informed of the jury's verdict in his cell in the county jail late Monday evening, cried: 'My God, to think that even the jury was influenced by mob law.'

Frank shrunk back for a brief moment as though struck when the one word 'guilty' was uttered by a friend, but regained his composure immediately. He would not see newspapermen and his friends would tell little of what he said except that one of them vouched for the information that he had asserted:

'I am just as innocent now as I was a year ago.' As the news was broken to Frank his wife uttered a cry of anguish.

'Oh, Leo,' she wailed, 'can't we get justice?' and broke down in tears. She was attended to by her family physician.

Frank said he would issue a written statement later, but only with the permission of his attorneys.

Leo M. Frank was found guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan by a jury in Judge Roan's court at 4:56 Monday afternoon and a minute later a howling crowd was cheering its approval.

According to what appears to be reliable authority the jury was unanimous in its verdict on the first ballot formally taken one hour and a half after the jury returned from its dinner.

All doors to the courtroom were locked as the verdict came in. No recommendation for mercy was made by the twelve men who listened to four long weeks of exhaustive evidence.

Thirty-five hundred people outside the courthouse yelled themselves hoarse as the verdict was announced. Juror Winburn, the foreman, escorted by a deputy, led the jury into the room.

Frank's presence in the courtroom has been waived according to an announcement made at 4:15, when it was reported that the jury had reached a verdict. The courtroom was to be cleared for the jury to make its announcement.

Jury Nervous and Pale. The jury was very nervous and pale as it entered the courtroom headed by Deputy Planno Miner. For a time it hesitated before the twelve men entered the jury box.

'Gentlemen, have you reached a verdict?' said Judge Roan when the jury had become seated.

'Foreman Winburn arose and said: "We have your honor." The foreman then opened the piece of paper upon which the verdict was written and read:

When the jury was ushered in, Frank was not present. Judge Roan said to Dorsey: 'Mr. Dorsey, I understand that you have waived the presence of the accused.'

The Solicitor General nodded his head. 'I do,' he answered. The verdict was read. The jury had deliberated for four hours and seven minutes.

After posing for several flashlight photographs, the jury left the box and was swarmed by newspaper men. Questions as to how the verdict was reached remained unanswered.

To each inquiry the jurymen stated that they had taken an oath not to reveal the details under which the decision was arrived at.

Chiefs for the Jury. The grim visage of each man, however, told of the hard battle through which they had gone. After a short time the jurymen left the courtroom. As they were recognized by the crowds outside, the courthouse, they were wildly cheered.

Frank's mother at the Selig home on Georgia avenue showed the most remarkable fortitude when the news was given to her. She wept bitterly for a few moments, then dried her eyes and announced that she would fight her boy's cause to the highest court.

After leaving the courthouse, Attorney Dorsey retired to the Kaiser building, where he remained in conference for 20 minutes. He left the building in company with Attorney Stephens and was again greeted with a tremendous outburst of applause.

A double row of policemen formed a passageway to the Solicitor's automobile. Dorsey took his seat the crowd gathered around the machine and hundreds of congratulatory hands were thrust toward him.

Mounted policemen had to go in front of the car to open up the streets. From buildings on either side of the streets handkerchiefs were waved and men women in the windows cheered.

The cheering continued until the automobile was out of sight. At the Kimball house, to which the jurymen went to gather up the clothing and personal effects which they had used during the course of the trial, the jurymen were greeted and greeted the men with another ovation until the corridors resounded.

Each man was swamped with persons, known and unknown to him, who wrung his hand vigorously.

Solicitor Dorsey finished his speech at twelve o'clock and Judge Roan prepared to charge the jury. A brief recess was taken.

Courthouse officials, the attorneys in the case and newspapermen were the only ones present when the jury brought in its verdict. The dramatic scene that had been expected when the factory superintendent faced the men who paid his life in their hands was, of course, averted by the waiting of the prisoner's presence.

DORSEY RIDES FRANK'S OWN STATEMENT FINAL FEEL
Crowds Outside and Inside of Court Vociferously Applaud the Solicitor

GOOD CHARACTER OF DORSEY TO CONVICTIVE JUROR ASSERTS
JUDGE CHARGES JURY

Here is Judge Ross's complete charge to the jury verbatim: "Gentlemen of the Jury—This bill of indictment charges Leo M. Frank with the offense of murder. The charge is that Leo M. Frank, in this county, on the 26th day of April of this year, with force and arms, did unlawfully and with malice aforethought kill and murder one Mary Phagan; and then and there choking her, she died." "This charge made by the bill of indictment found by the Grand Jury of this county recently impeached Leo M. Frank the defendant, flees a plea of not guilty. The charge as made by the bill of indictment on the one hand and his plea of not guilty on the other, and you, gentlemen of the jury, have been selected therefrom and sworn to try the truth of this charge.

Leo M. Frank, the defendant, commences the trial of this issue with the presumption of innocence in his favor and his presumption of innocence remains with him, to shield him and protect him, until the State shall overcome it and remove it by evidence, sufficient in its strength and character to satisfy your minds beyond a reasonable doubt of his guilt of each and every material allegation made by the bill of indictment. "Direct evidence is that which immediately points to the question at issue. Indirect or circumstantial evidence is that which only tends to establish the issue by proof of various facts surrounding it, by their consistency with the hypothesis claimed. To warrant a conviction on circumstantial evidence, the proven facts must not only be consistent with the hypothesis of guilt, but must exclude every other reasonable doubt hypothesis save that of the guilt of the accused. Character Evidence of Importance.

"The defendant has introduced testimony as to his good character. On this subject, charges you that evidence of good character when offered by the defendant, in a criminal case, is not admissible as material, and should be considered by the jury, along with all the other evidence introduced, as one of the facts of the case. It should be considered by the jury, not merely where the balance of the testimony in the case makes it doubtful whether the defendant is guilty or not, but also where such evidence of good character may of itself create a doubt as to the defendant's guilt. Good character is a substantial fact, like any other fact tending to establish the defendant's guilt, and ought to be regarded by the jury.

"If other facts proved in the case, it should be weighed and estimated by the jury, for it may render that doubtful which otherwise would be clear. However, if the guilt of the accused is plainly proved to the satisfaction of the jury beyond a reasonable doubt notwithstanding the proof of good character, it is their duty to convict. But the jury may consider the good character of the defendant, whether the rest of the testimony leaves the question of his guilt doubtful or not, and if a considerable part of the proof of his good character, considered along with the evidence, creates a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the jury as to the defendant's guilt, then it would be the duty of the jury to acquit him of the charge.

"If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict.

"If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict.

"If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict.

"If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict.

"If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict.

MRS. FRANK ARRIVING AT THE COURTHOUSE

DEEDS PRISONERS BE SEEN BY DORSEY AS SLAYER

Refreshed by the week-end recess, Solicitor General Dorsey returned Monday to the State's closing argument. By the force of logic and denunciation of his final words to the jury the Solicitor hopes to obtain a verdict guilty against Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan.

The day and a half intermission furnished a breathing spell for the State's prosecutor. He came back to the battle with new spirit and with an absence of the fatigue that compelled him to stop his stirring argument Saturday and ask Judge Ross for a recess.

Solicitor Dorsey was vociferously cheered as he entered the courtroom by a crowd waiting for the trial to open and the courtroom there was as full as when he went to the State's table within the railing.

Judge Ross entered the room as the applause died down while the deputies were tapping for order. He announced that if there was any objection to a recess he would grant the courtroom. The judge declared the work of four long weeks and then began his speech in a low, hoarse voice.

"Your honor and gentlemen of the jury," he said, "I need the necessity for having to carry this case over into another week and through another Sunday. If a recess had been declared, I might have been able to have finished my speech and done more for the jury. The charge and turned the case over to you. The courtroom was the present course wiser.

"Gentlemen, you know it is true that never in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race and in the history of the world have there been so many innocent and white men who have been accused and convicted of a crime as in the case of Leo M. Frank. I am not going into an exhaustive study of that statement. It is unnecessary to further burden you with it, but there are certain language and statements which merit some consideration.

"The defendant stated, after his honor has recalled our story, and excluded it properly that his wife had been with him at the time of the murder. He stated that she was with him at the time of the murder. He stated that she was with him at the time of the murder. He stated that she was with him at the time of the murder.

"If you have heard the evidence, you know that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged. If you have heard the evidence, you know that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged. If you have heard the evidence, you know that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged.

"If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict. If the defendant has introduced evidence of his good character, and if the jury is satisfied that the defendant is guilty of the offense with which he is charged, it is their duty to convict.

the B'nai B'rith—according to Leo, you hung your head and quailed him for, but only you do not know about this we'll both go to hell." Then in your attempt to do your own best, you tried to make it appear that your own best was to do as you pleased, and you went against you and lied about what happened.

Lanford Says He Is Vindicated.
Though he has been convicted of the most terrible crime in the history of the South, the friends who have stood by Leo Frank during the four long months since Mary Phagan's body was found have not deserted him.

Responsible for the death of Mary Phagan.
The interest in the residence scene of the city was fully as great as downtown when the verdict came Monday.

Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford, head of the department which aided in securing the evidence that convicted Frank, has issued a statement declaring that the trial of the factory superintendent was the fairest he had ever seen.

Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford, head of the department which aided in securing the evidence that convicted Frank, has issued a statement declaring that the trial of the factory superintendent was the fairest he had ever seen.

"I have never feared in a case where the prisoner was given more privileges and liberties than Frank has received," Chief Lanford declared.

"We have worked very hard since Little Mary Phagan was murdered and have tried to get the truth regarding the terrible crime. We have been severely condemned by a few persons, most of whom are unfamiliar with the case and with police methods of obtaining evidence. But the verdict of the jury is the complete vindication of our department. We feel that we have done the greatest and best work in the conviction of the man

FRANK AND HIS WIFE HEAR JURY'S VERDICT

Frank received the news with fortitude and appeared to be more concerned about his wife than himself.

The verdict of the jury was announced to Frank and his wife by Rabbi Marx and Dr. Rosenberg.

Hooper Praises Dorsey's Work
