NEWSPAPER MAN TELLS OF JIM CONLEY'S PANTOMIME RE-ENACTMENT AT FACTORY

Solicitor Dorsey Attacks the Pinkertons, Charging That They Failed to Report Their "Finds" to Police—Many Young Women Employed at the Factory Testify to Frank's Good Character—Court Adjourns Until Monday Morning

With Harlow Branch, a reporter for The Journal, on his witness stand where he had just described Conley's pantomime re-enactment of his alleged part in the disposal of the body of Mary Phagan, written by him as a newspaper man, the trial of Leo M. Frank was adjourned at 1:05 o'clock Saturday afternoon until Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Mr. Branch, summoned by the defense to testify regarding his interview with Jim Conley at the tower, over the protest of Attorney Luther Reuss, was permitted by the court to describe Conley's pantomime re-enactment which requested to do so by the solicitor.

Just before court adjourned, Judge Ross addressed a few words to the jury, expressing regret that it was necessary to keep them away from their families another Sunday but stating that he anxiously hoped this was the last Friday that they would have to be held together.

"I am confident that the jury will be able to do its duty," Judge Ross said, "and I am sure that the jury will be able to do its duty."
